Status:	Resolved	Start date:	23.04.2018
Priority:	Normal	Due date:
Assignee:		% Done:	0%
Category:		Estimated time:	0.00 hour
Target version:		Spent time:	0.00 hour
Description
- the username should be included within history of actions, in a same way as it is done on backend in commit: 372392210b4ba6159e55db7327b0dcc831ec3180
- note that main message on the login screen should not be more specific, i.e. "Authorization failed" is sufficient there

RDF4J Server is a database management application that exposes RDF4J repositories as SPARQL endpoints and enables HTTP access to them. RDF4J Server is designed to be used by other programs. It does not provide any user-oriented functionality aside from the ability to see the server's log messages. RDF4J Workbench, on the other hand, includes user-oriented capabilities. The Workbench is a web interface for querying, updating, and exploring RDF4J Server repositories. If you haven't previously, you'll need to download the RDF4J SDK, which includes both the RDF4J Server and the RDF4J Workbench in the same directory. This directory's war-files must be deployed in a Java Servlet Container. We have 5 retro-inspired games in our website for free.
